(Last week The Township Register told how the Essanay film company came to Niles in 1912 under G. M. "Broncho Billy" Anderson. This week's installment contains the story of Essanay's early movie-making experiences here. It is told in The Register for the first time.)

By STUART NIXON

Niles was hardly a wide place in the road in the summer of 1912. True, there was a sign on the Walpert barn advising tourists to "Watch Niles Grow."... But nobody cared much when some prankster added a final "L," to make "Grow" into "Growl."

There were few houses or stores on First Street in those days. A few more bungalow-and-porch affairs graced Second Street. Then came the gravel pits and the creek. In all, there probably weren't 400 people in the town.

What Niles lacked in size however, it made up in vigor. The gravel pits, the brick works, the railroads all brought in their quota of hard characters who would as soon punch a stranger as talk to him.

These tin-eared specimens hung out in the six saloons on First [illegible] reet. They scorned to mix with the respectable element, or with the wealthy summer crowd who periodically occupied spacious white mansions south of Alameda Creek.

The town abounded in colorful native types whose nicknames described them better than anyone could: General Shorty, Freezout Joe, and Joe Sidehill. They felt right at home with the odd Bohemians Broncho Billy Anderson brought with him in 1912, as the Western expedition of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company.

At first the married and the more conservative actors lived at the Belvoir Hotel. The rowdies stayed in town at the Wesley. This hostelry tried to preserve appearances with cut-glass bud-vases in the dining room and a colored porter who met the trains and called "Ho-tel Wes-ley," just like the big San Francisco establishments.

Anderson had a reputation to maintain, both onstage and off. Though he was a husky Western hero to millions, when away from the cameras he preferred the Valentino role. Consequently he lived in more cosmopolitan San Francisco and commuted in a huge white Thomas Flyer touring car, which the natives said you could hear when it hit Hayward.

In the summer of '12, Anderson, Marguerite Clayton, True Boardman, Vic Potel, the Harry Carrs, "Alkali Ike" Carney and the rest did their acting either on horseback up Niles Canyon or on a makeshift stage behind a barn on Second Street. The films were developed in a 70-foot baggage car Anderson brought with him and parked on the I Street siding.

DEPUTIES CAPTURE ROBBERY SUSPECT ASLEEP IN CAR

One of the State's most wanted robbery suspects was captured early Monday by two local deputy sheriffs as he slept in his car at Machado's Corners.

He was identified as William Everett Taylor, 21, who is wanted for questioning, among other crimes, about the $25,000 robbery of a dairy in St. Paul, Minn. Taylor is suspected of being a member of a gang of armed thugs.

Making a routine patrol, Deputies Bob Swaynie and Bud Fall came on Taylor's parked car shortly after 3 a.m. They aroused Taylor, quizzed and searched him. The search disclosed a loaded .38-caliber revolver in a shoulder holster, and $2100 in $100 bills.

Taylor refused to answer questions except to say he carried the gun "for protection," and that he won the money gambling in Las Vegas. He was booked here for carrying a concealed weapon, and also en route to San Francisco, where he is wanted for questioning about a $1500 restaurant robbery last January.

It was the second time in six weeks that a check of parked cars paid off for local officers. On February 1, Deputies Dean Davenport and Claire Cook, making a similar inspection near Niles, found the bullet-riddled body of William Pelton, believed to have been slain by his estranged GI bride.

The woman, Hildegarde Pelton, 32, is understood to have fled to Mexico.

Top Lions Speaker

Donna Moore of Centerville won the Lions Club public speaking contest here Tuesday night. Runners-up were Sally Jo McCord of Hillview Crest and Paul Thomsen of Irvington. Miss Moore will compete in the zone finals here March 24.

Zoning Stirs Township; Irvington Okehs Quarry, Brick Plant; 'Acres Crisis Near

Meeting Tonight In Niles School

Washington Township, where zoning meant painting pedestrian crosswalks a few years back, this week rocked to a series of daily developments involving control of land uses.

Some of them:

1. Centerville's Chamber of Commerce demanded zoning protection for agriculture against hodge-podge subdivisions and indutry.

2. Adobe Acres homeowners near Niles prepared for another meeting tonight to reinforce their demands for protective zoning.

3. Urged by Bruce Michael, farmer of Warm Springs, a county-wide businessmen's committee warned the Supervisors and Planning Commission to "more fully recognize their responsibility to the public in developing a Master Plan for Alameda County."

4. Mission San Jose set March 23 for a definite decision on whether the historic town wants to be zoned.

5. Decoto is seeking a detailed development plan for its area.

In Centerville on Monday, Michael asked and got support for the amendment to the county Zoning Ordinance which would, he said, prevent ranches from being "squeezed out" before their time by casual subdivisions.

Michael stressed the amendment doesn't zone any farm area, but only permits farm residents to zone if they want to. Areas near towns, he pointed out, aren't likely to be affected.

Lee S. Williams, chairman of a chamber committee to study the matter, pushed it to a conclusion and unanimous approval. The Supervisors are slated to consider the amendment March 26, in the face of expected heavy opposition from subdividers and from Supervisor Harry Bartell.

The Adobe Acres zoning issue comes before the Planning Commission at a special session Monday, and is slated for a decision next Wednesday. Tonight's meeting is in the Niles School.

Last Thursday before the Land Planning Committee of Alameda County, Michael plumped hard for renewed interest in county-wide planning, pointing out that growth will overwhelm the rural areas otherwise. The resolution criticizing county officials followed, although Harold Frank, committee chairman, predicted it will be ignored.

The Mission Chamber of Commerce met Monday to hear an explanation of the Towsnhip "master plan," by Commission Secretary J. J. Thomas. Then President Herman Medeiros set March 23 for a special session on "brass tacks" plans for the town.

Thomas also met with the Decoto Chamber last week and warned the town, which is already zoned, to take action to channel incoming industry before the industry gets the upper hand. President Manuel Hidalgo said he will name a planning committee shortly.

LIGHT RAINS END 48-DAY DRY SPELL HERE, MAY SAVE GRASS

Monday night's showers broke a 48-day dry spell in the Township, but whether they saved parched hillside pastures won't be known for a few days.

Rain gauges at Niles recorded only .17 inch, while San Jose was receipting for .43 inch and Oakland about the same.

More rains are on the way, says the weatherman, as storm clouds gather in the Gulf of Alaska. If any quantity—say an inch or more—falls, grain and pasture lands still may avoid ruin.

The 48-day drought is the longest in recent winters. Hot weather, mounting to 95 degrees here on Saturday, brought out fruit blossoms early, and a frost which followed may have damaged the apricot crop, experts said.

Joe Shinn, Niles cherry grower, said the showers were "too early and not heavy enough" to damage his trees.

Temperatures, from Citizens Utilities Company, Niles:

NEWARK CENTER TO BE AIRED TUESDAY

All of Newark is invited to view a San Leandro broker's blueprint of a $3,000,000 shopping center for the community next Tuesday at a meeting of the local chamber of commerce.

Arthur Beal, the promoter, has asked to display his plan for the center at Birch and Thornton, according to Chamber President Joe Pashote.

Beal last week disclosed he has optioned 25 acres on which to build the stores and parking space. He added however he (1) wants community approval, and (2) rezoning of the site from residential to commercial.

Pashote said this week Beal told him he will guarantee adequate safeguards for surrounding homes. The meeting starts at 8 p.m. in the Newark Youth Center.

SCOUT PAPER DRIVE SET FOR SATURDAY

Got an attic full of old newspapers?

Residents of Washington Township who have, and who want to get rid of them this week-end, will welcome the news that Centerville's 'Boy Scout Troop No. 1 will pick up the papers Saturday in their annual waste paper fund drive.

"Bundle your papers in front of your home," says Anker Christensen, chairman of the drive. "Have them there by 9:30 a.m., and a Scout truck will pick them up."

Otherwise, they may be dropped at the Scout Trailer on the Centerville Food Market parking lot. A house call may be solicited by telephoning Publicity Chairman Gordon Morris at Centerville 8-2002.

HILLVIEW DOUBLE SESSIONS START

Decoto's new Hillview Crest School opened its doors last week—and already it's on double sessions!

Just under 400 students—392—were enrolled by Monday, with more in prospect, Principal Boyd Morningstar said.

Hillview's enrollment makes it the most crowded of the district's three grammar schools. Decoto School, on H Street, shrank to 387 on Monday with removal of the Hillview Cresters. Barnard also lost a Hillview fourth grade, a fifth grade and a kindergarten, and had 378 enrolled on Monday. Now both the Barnard and Decoto Schools are free of double sessions.

The district opened with 988 pupils last fall. Now it has 1157.

Hillview Crest, however, has its kindergartens and all three first grades on half-day sessions. Teachers there said the third grade, which now has 51 pupils, might have to double-up too.

C'VILLE ASKS REBER STUDY

A $250,000 legislative study of the Reber Plan, and speedy solution to California's highway problems — including completion of the Eastshore Freeway—were sought Monday by the Centerville Chamber of Commerce.

A San Joaquin Valley chamber of commerce, at Shafter, had asked endorsement of the Reber study. Attorney LeRoy Broun agreed, saying:

"There has never been an unbiased investigation of the salt-water barriers proposed in the Reber Plan."

Then a State Chamber of Commerce request for support of highway financing was discussed, and Judge Allen G. Norris declared:

"We ought to ask that the Eastshore Freeway be finished at the earliest possible date—and also that construction of main highways in California be financed out of future rather than present income, probably by bonds."

Both proposals carried and will be forwarded to the Legislature.

Irvington Group Invites Industry

A green light for a $400,000 brick factory and an adjoining clay-and-gravel quarry on Durham Road was flashed Tuesday by the Irvington Chamber of Commerce.

By unanimous vote, the chamber asked the County Planning Commission to grant the petition for rezoning a residential plot to light industrial so George Jarrett of San Francisco can build the factory.

The resolution carried endorsement of a requested permit for Henry Sand to reopen an abandoned quarry next to the plant.

Bruce Michael, Warm Springs rancher, warned the recommendation "sets a bad precedent," and if followed, may "hinder future residential growth."

However at the planning commission meeting Wednesday, neither project was opposed, and both will come up for final okeh later this month.

The two issues are tied together because Jarrett wants to use clay from Sand's quarry to make his bricks. A conveyor belt will carry the material to his plant.

At the chamber luncheon, Gus Robertson, head of a committee named to investigate the requests, reported "this is large acreage and we don't consider it 'spot' zoning. We further feel that this chamber should encourage industry here to make a well-balanced community from a tax standpoint. This means employment for 100 men and a payroll of $40,000 a month."

Michael interposed that "industry normally, logically goes along railroad tracks, not along the hills," and said the recommendation was "mistaken." Mrs. Kenneth Foster agreed.

Robertson replied his committee interpreted planning commission views as meaning the area in question is suitable for a quarry, and thus that Jarrett's factory would be acceptable beside it. He said this interpretation was based on a commission agenda in which the property is described as "potentially subject to quarrying."

At the public hearing, Commissioner Fred Mellmann forced a delay of one week on Sand's permit when Mellmann found Sand's map inadequate.

Mellmann said he wants to make sure only the 27 acres referred to actually are used for quarrying. Sand owns 100 acres.

"There's going to come a day when residents won't want any quarries there," the commissioner explained. "I don't want this permit used to take all the hills off, 40 years from now."

Sand agreed to supply a more detailed map by next Wednesday. Jarrett's rezoning was set for a second hearing March 25.

TIME TO FILE GI TAX EXEMPTIONS

Affidavits for veterans' tax exemption claims must be completed and returned to the assessor's office before May 25, to obtain exemption for the 1953-54 fiscal year, County Assessor Russell C. Horstmann warned today.

The affidavits for exemption claims already have been mailed to those who entered similar claims last year. Those filing for the first time must appear in person and present the complete original or full-sized copy of honorable discharges or other satisfactory evidence giving dates of active duty, the assessor said.

It is also permissible for a veteran's wife to file the claim in his behalf.

Those who have filed before may file by mail if the affidavits are properly filled out, signed, and acknowledged by a person authorized to administer oaths. The affidavit card must be presented if the veteran or his wife file in person at the assessor's office.

Marston Dassell, deputy assessor, of Niles, warned there will not be a deputy at the Memorial Building this year to assist veterans to prepare their exemptions.

They plan to manufacture a Whitaker invention, "Banburn," a sunburn lotion which reportedly filters harmful sun rays to give the user a healthy tan.

"Banburn" already is being marketed on a Statewide scale, the Whitakers report. The factory will be a family operation.

Officers of the Centerville Chamber of Commerce were installed last week at a meeting in the Doughnut Nook.

Romeo Brunelli was seated as president, succeeding William Clark. Other new officers include William Short, vice-president; LeRoy Broun, recording secretary; Louis L. Cardoza, financial secretary, and Erle Hygelund, treasurer.

Cardoza reported 47 paid-up memberships.

MAIL DELIVERY IN DECOTO? MAYBE

Decoto may get house-to-house mail delivery, and might get Hillview Crest mail back from Hayward . . .

These possibilities, with a big "if" stressed, were brought up to the local Chamber of Commerce last week by Supt. of Schools Harold Schoenfeld, who reported on a recent trip East.

Dr. Scoenfeld said he discussed the issue with Congressman George P. Miller, according to Chamber President Manuel Hidalgo, and the legislator advised taking steps to obtain street signs and sidewalks as the next move in getting mail deliveries.

Miller also told Schoenfeld, according to Hidalgo, that when this is done, it may be possible to transfer Hillview Crest mail from Hayward to Decoto again. It was removed nearly a year ago.

Hidalgo said petitions for sidewalks are on file with the district attorney, and that others asking the mail deliveries are being circulated.

TOWNSFOLKS ACTED IN ESSANAY FILMS

Niles Jumped When Movies Came in 1912

Anderson knew more permanent quarters would have to be built. He bought land on First Street, west of G, from Tom Sullivan, a former county roadmaster. Then Anderson paid $1600 to Billy Moore for eight lots fronting on Second Street.

That fall, armed with money from his millionaire partner, George H. Spoor, of Chicago, Anderson began construction of the finest film studio in the West. It was to be nearly a block long, a story-and-a-half high, with sliding doors, a lighted stage, property rooms, dressing rooms, and even a private projection theater.

In the rear, on Moore's lots, he ordered a half-dozen cottages built to house his stars.

Meantime, Anderson & Co. were hot after the dollars that came so easily in those days before the income tax. Each Broncho Billy western brought in thousands from the eager fans, although the flickering celluloid ran only 1000 feet. Day and night, carpenters, prop men, cameramen, actors and actresses went tearing through one improvised story after another.

"We used to slam them out in a day and a half," recalls Mrs. Hal Angus of Hayward. As Josephine Rector, she was chief scenario writer.

Her pay was $25 a week, but like other technicians, she augmented that by acting in the Westerns, often with curly-haired, sharp profiled Fred Church. Giddy Oakland society girls used to take the dusty drive to Niles so they could watch Fred Church. Stately Josephine Rector starred with him in "The Dance at Eagles Pass," a saga of love's triumph over a crooked postmaster.

Aside from Anderson, nobody got rich in 1912 off Essanay at Niles. Actors got $35 to $60 a week. They were old stock-company character players. Not until 1915 would Essanay knuckle down to the star system and pay Charlie Chaplin $1250 a week to come to Niles. Townsfolk played extras for $3 a day and the glory.

The atmosphere, Mrs. Angus says, was like a family hotel. The Todds and the Boardmans were good churchgoing folk, and they watched out for the quieter girls and the families.

Bartenders of that era tell a different tale. Apparently it was all in the company you kept.

From the start, Essanay had a powerful impact on Niles. The wild careening stagecoach rides up the canyon, dummies flung from the bank roof, cars churning up First Street spewing smoke from smudge-pots . . . it was nothing Niles had been schooled to expect during its first 50 years.

Most of the townsfolk loved it, though. A. S. Enos, now of Centerville, remembers one day when he was driving a wagon in the canyon. Suddenly by pre-arranged signal, a mob of shooting cowboys burst from the brush, leaped from their horses onto a passing train.

"Nobody thought to tell the passengers," said Enos... "You should have seen those women fainting!"

Bert Silveira, Niles barber, recalls another canyon episode.

"Here comes Anderson driving this wagon," Silveira says. "He goes up and over this train track and on up Stoneybrook Canyon. Then a few minutes later along comes this train and they take pictures of that too.

"A few weeks later I see the movie in the theater here. They fixed it so it looks like the train just missed him. I've never believed anything I've seen in pictures since!"

This disillusionment didn't extend to the town's youth. They lived, drank and slept Essanay. Several of them were hired by the studio: Danny Kelleher, a freckle-faced, red-haired orphan; Frank "Slobs" Pimentel, an expert with horses; Lloyd Easterday, a driver. For Kelleher, at least, it was the turning point of his life. He worked for the movies from that day on, rose to be one of Hollywood's top sound technicians.

Anderson himself inspired some disillusionment. Wary of horses, he devised a technique whereby daring cowboys like Pimentel or Bill Cato, a Los Banos import, would substitute for him in dangerous scenes. Thus the famed "double" system was born.

Anderson had a "shooting double" too, one Texas George, who could snap a cigaret from a man's mouth at 20 yards with his six-gun. Anderson confined his activity to ferocious gestures before the close-up cameras, and to his excursions into San Francisco.

There were hints of scandal in Niles, too. One buxom girl, stagestruck daughter of a wealthy Midwest brewing family, died mysteriously one night in a lonely cottage on Second Street. No one knew much about it, and there was talk. But no inquest. Perhaps Niles missed an ancestor of the Fatty Arbuckle shock.

The cameras continued to grind. Niles' fame continued to spread. Not only the Broncho Billys, but several new series — comedies — were started. Gus Carney starred in the Alkali Ikes, Vic Potel in the Slippery Slims, and the whole gang in the Snakeville Comedies, wild and goofy competitors of the Keystone Kops.

The new art had put Niles' squarely on the map.

RAPS 'AMBULANCE CHASERS' IN TALK

The combination of inflation and ambulance-chasing attorneys has jacked the cost of auto insurance to a point painful to drivers' pocketbooks, an insurance executive told the Niles Rotary Club last week.

Carl B. Whitehouse warned the public, which serves on juries, must become alert to the fact that over-large accident verdicts further increase the cost of accident-insurance premiums.

He rapped the National Association of Claimants' 'Attorneys, which he said "specializes in getting huge verdicts, and which claims insurance companies have no right to fight them."

"If we could get these claims legitimately settled before a lawsuit," Whitehouse asserted, "your premiums might be cut in half."

The speaker urged parents to take time in teaching their youngsters proper driving habits, and in seeing the youths purchase safe cars. He warned "there are 26,000 accidents every Thursday in the U. S., with 104 people killed," and predicted unless this trend is reversed, "one out of every two people now living in this country will be eventually killed or hurt by a car."

BUDDIES IN WAR, BUDDIES IN JUG

Dan Harkins and Marvin Brown served together in the Navy, came home from Korea on the same ship.

They bunked together at Moffett Field.

Monday night they were arrested together, for being drunk in a car near Centerville.

Tuesday they were fined together, $50 each, by Justice E. A. Quaresma.

IRVINGTON NEEDS

Allan Hirsch was named Tuesday to head an Irvington Chamber of Commerce committee on obtaining better water and phone service. Karl Christensen heads one on planning and development.

LOSE LICENSES

Two drivers license losses were announced here this week by the State Department of Motor Vehicles. A suspension went to Dale R. Parmer of 255 Thornton Avenue, Centerville, for a second drunken driving conviction; and Estevan G. Rangel of 404 Third Street, Niles, had his license revoked for repeated traffic violations.

SUZY SEZ...

The man in our house turned away a salesman for a check writing machine, saying he already had a wife at home.

* * * *

A visit to the nearby elementary school recently disclosed that many children here in Orchard Park consider our flat roofs a rule rather than the exception. It is surprising how many youngsters draw houses with flat tops. Quite a contrast to our own peaked and gabled drawings of that age.

* * * *

"Diet!" It is an unpleasant word, but always an attention-getter in any group. Over coffee recently we chose it as the least-liked word in everyday use. However, it seems that everyone in Orchard Park, including myself, is either trying to take off or put on weight.

* * * *

Hint for non-dieters, unless you have a will power of iron (mine is a little rusty), to quickly cut cookies, roll the dough and then cut strips and squares using a pie crust corrugator. Quick and fancy. Or slice rolls of refrigerator cooky dough with the corrugated French-fry cutter. "Cute cookies," our youngest calls the latter.

* * * *

Put sachet powder under the ironing board cover for a nice odor in your ironed dresses. Of course, do not forget and do a shirt or handkerchief for your husband at the same time, unless you want his fellow workers to call him "Daisy" or "Sweetie."

Well, I for one will be glad when the kite flying season is over. The sight of torn kites caught on wires around Centerville always makes me wonder when our children will learn to fly them away from power and phone poles.

* * * *

Every mother in Orchard Park agrees with this one. The only time to criticize other people's children is when your own are over 70!

REBS TAG WUHS 9 WITH FIRST LOSS

Washington Huskies lost their first baseball game of the 1953 season March 4, when they were blanked here, 4-0, by the San Lorenzo Rebels.

The Rebels repeated the trick Monday, 1-0.

For the first five frames in the March 4 tilt, Pitcher Raul Orozco and Rebel Hurler Tom Depolo staged a tight pitchers duel, as the 0-0 score indicated. Orozco had allowed only one baseknock while the Malemutes had garnered four off the southpaw, Depolo, by Nieves, King, Chacon and Rodarte.

But the pitching exhibition was broken up in the Rebels' half of the sixth. They combined four singles and two bases on balls for the game-winning four runs, while Depolo held the locals hitless.

Rebel Pitcher Pinky Grace pitched one-hit ball Monday for the second shutout. Only a single in the fifth inning by John Chacon marred Grace's otherwise flawless performance.

Husky Pitcher Ed Romero also pitched one-hit ball, yielding his only hit in the fifth frame—a single by the same pesky Grace that scored Rebel runner Ram Thornley.

Score by innings, March 4:

CHACON'S BAT SINKS BELLARMINE, 7 TO 1

By BOB HIRD

Catcher Johnny Chacon gave the Washington Huskies their second victory of the young season last Friday, as he batted the locals to a 7-1 win over Bellarmine at Santa Clara.

Chacon's bat provided five of the Malemutes' seven runs. The first two came in the second stanza when the red-hot Husky unloaded a towering home run over the left field fence with a runner ahead of him. The clout carried 340 feet.

Chacon's final three came in the sixth frame as he smashed a bases-loaded double against the left field fence. Chacon was thrown out at third trying to stretch it into a 3-bagger.

While Chacon provided the hitting, Pitcher Bob Lunsford held the Bells to one run, four hits, struck out 1, and walked none.

FORUM STARTS MONDAY

Judge Allen G. Norris will be the speaker Monday for the first in a series of educational forums on county government, sponsored by Women For Better Government, non-partisan group. The forum starts at 7:30 p.m. in Washington High School, and is open to the public.

BEARCAT WARMUPS SET FOR SUNDAY

Centerville's Bearcat baseball club will field a team again this spring, and practice starts next Sunday.

This announcement came today from Frank Mayer, who manages the aggregation for Backer Joe Dutra.

Dutra said practice starts at 11 a.m. on Washington Hi diamond, with new prospects welcome. The club has come up with potent teams in the past two years, winning the County Winter League pennant in 1951-52.

Answer to this week's Guess Who: Leland Stanford "Lee" Williams, Centerville grower and shipper.

SPORTS SPOTLITE

This week's two athletes are Ed King and Paul Thomsen.

King is in his last year at Washington Hi and has starred in football and baseball.

Football is Ed's favorie sport and the big six-foot, 195-pound senior has put in three years on Jud Taylor's varsity eleven.

This year the bruising King, who plays the center position, would have earned a berth on the All-SCVAL team if not for a rib injury early in the season. He is an outstanding defensive linebacker.

He also has played two years of varsity baseball. He covers the outfield or first base and is noted as a long-ball hitter.

Ed plans to attend San Jose State, and hopes to play football there.

Thomsen is also a senior at W.U.H.S., and played basketball for four years. His first two were on the C team under Coach Don Wolfe, and the last two on Coach Clyde Voorhees varsity five.

Thomsen, at six feet-three, is one of the tallest men on this year's club, and rated as one of Voorhees' most valuable reserves. He played guard, and was a fine rebounder.

The classiest game the hustling Thomsen turned in was this year's contest against Live Oak. Although he scored only 6 points, he garnered over 20 rebounds.

Paul is the president of the student body, and is considered one of the best in Washington's history. He is thinking of attending San Jose State.

CIVIL DEFENSE AID GROUP MEETS TUES.

Still badly in need for personnel, the first aid section of Washington Township's Civil Defense organization will meet here Tuesday.

Dr. E. C. Grau, chairman, announces the meeting will be at 8 p.m. in Washington Union High School. He said the meetings henceforth will be held the third Tuesday of each month.

SILVA WINS NSGW PING-PONG TILT

Jack Silva of Centerville defeated his fellow-townsman Frank Rickenbacker, 26-24 and 21-14, to take last week's final in the Native Sons Ping-Pong Tournament.

Silva then teamed up with Al Silveira of Warm Springs to win the doubles over Rickenbacker and Vernon Rose, 18-21, 21-13, 21-14.

The local parlor's pedro tournament starts Tuesday. Defending champs are Caesar DiGiulio and Lou Havey of Niles.

Softball Confab Set

A meeting to determine if Washington Township's softball league will operate again this year has been called for Friday.

Vernon Rose, secretary of the Township Softball Association, set the session for 7 p.m. in Washington High School.

Sponsors and club managers are urged to attend. Rose said the association wants to start loop play sometime around June, but added this depends on the response at tomorrow's meeting.

CENTERVILLE SCHOOL NEWS

Members of the student committee in charge of Junior Red Cross activities are: Christine Jones, Marjorie Keller, Edwin Amaral, Dennis Jergentz, and Billy Keller. Mrs. Alice Lambrecht is faculty representative.

Frank Stephens, photographer, took individual pictures of the students of Centerville Elementary School March 9, and of the students at Thornton School on March 10.

Students attended the P.T.A. Symphony in Berkeley High School community theater on March 10. They were accompanied by Mrs. Doris Graves, teacher of instrumental music.

Fritz Kercher and his trained horse will present a program for the students next Monday.

During his term as president of the United States, Ulysses S. Grant vetoed 42 bills.

CARD OF THANKS

A word of thanks to all who so kindly donated towards the funeral of John Correia, especially those at Joe's Corner, Perry's Oasis and California Pottery. Also to Antone Ray who was so kind to donate a plot at the Centerville Cemetery.

This complete story of Pacific Telephone in 1952 is yours for the asking at your Pacific Telephone Business Office.

1952: A Year of Telephone Progress for You

We've been building fast to bring still more service, still better service, to all the Pacific West

At work today in the Pacific West are more telephones than ever before in history. And the service they provide is better than ever, too. For 1952 was a year of progress for Pacific Telephone, as have been all the years since the end of World War Two. Because the telephone is so important to everyone in the West today, we'd like to give you a quick report on this past year... taken from our Annual Report for 1952.

1952 Highlights

- Every day, Pacific Telephone spent half a million dollars on construction.
- Improvements in wages and related benefits for telephone employees amounted to more than $21,000,000 annually.
- Total taxes per telephone in 1952 amounted to $37.17. This means an average tax of $3.10 per telephone per month—almost double what it was ten years ago.
- Microwave radio relay facilities were extended to Portland, Seattle and San Diego ...helping us to handle more long distance calls than ever, and bringing network television to these cities for the first time.

YOUR TELEPHONE IS ONE OF TODAY'S BEST BARGAINS

New telephones went in fast. More than a million people in the Pacific West applied for telephones during the year. In most cases we were able to install them without delay. Enough telephone buildings, new lines and equipment were built during 1952 to serve the total needs of a new city the size of San Francisco. At the same time, we continued to make the telephone needs of national defense our first order of business. And in both military and civilian service, 1952 was a year of telephone progress. And we'll do all we can to match it in the years ahead.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN . . . ?

Well, Stalin is dead, and the temptation is to say it couldn't have happened to a nicer guy. Should Americans fiddle while Joe burns? Let's do a little crystal-gazing.

Number One question, of course, is whether Stalin's death will bring war closer, or push it further away. Most folks seem to think there'll be a struggle for power inside Russia, one which will keep the boys too busy closing rat-holes and liquidating rebellions to bother with the outside world.

From what we've read about Russia, we'd say no. The late Joe's Communist Party is better organized than Petrillo's union, and the understrappers will stay in line—or dangle from one. The key lies at the top of the heap.

This slab-puss Malenkov is no push-over. He's bound to fight to stay on top. And maybe that's the answer.

Suppose there's a real threat to Malenkov from inside the Politburo, or whatever runs Russia? Isn't it possible he might provoke a war just to take the pressure off himself? Malenkov is no Stalin: he's had no contact with the West. He doesn't know, as Joe did, the power and war potential of the U.S. So there'd be less to hold him back.

Then there's peace. Let's not dream—not now, please.

Of course there's a third possibility: continuing Stalin's policy of starting satellite wars like Korea, hoping to bankrupt us. Maybe Malenkov & Co. will decide on that. But before they could, they'd have to consolidate their power at home.

Transfer of power is an uneasy maneuver for dictatorships, even a strong one like Russia. It's a time when contending tyrants lash out blindly in their struggles. Therefore it is a time for Americans to be doubly wary and alert.

TWO COLLEGES IN 'MYSTERY'S' NAME

We tried to make it tough on our readers last week, and we even made it tough for ourselves. Try writing up Jud Taylor sometime without describing him as a teacher or athletic coach! This week we give up. You ought to be able to guess without looking through the paper for the answer:

As far as we know, he is the only man in the Township named for TWO universities! Are there any others?

He was born in Riverside in 1893, just about the time one of these colleges was founded. His father, a mining man, moved soon after to Pasadena, where our subject went through grammar and high school.

He says he took his time going through, with plenty of time out to work and gain mining experience in Mexico and other places.

In 1915, he went back to Iowa with a schoolmate to work on the friend's farm. Up to then, he didn't know a cauliflower from a bull thistle. But the friend took sick and our Mystery Man had to run the ranch for him!

He learned fast enough, but the summer spent in Iowa stretched to 13 years!

In 1928, our subject's younger brother wrote from Centerville, where he was working for a cannery, that Washington Township was the spot for an agriculturalist. So our man sold out his property in Iowa, just in time to avoid the Starvation Bowl, and came West again.

He has been here ever since. From 20 acres of tomatoes near Newark, he has graduated to ownership or operation of a sizeable chunk of the Township's choicest soil. In the process, he has built up a unique organization which occupies almost all his time.

We say "almost," because he is a vocal figure at civic gatherings, speaking always on the theme that this is a nice community, and he wants it to stay that way.

"Sure, I want progress," declares our Mystery Man, "but I want it orderly, and in a fashion that will make everyone glad to live here."

He married an Iowa girl in 1918, now has two sons and a daughter —all native Iowans but loyal townshippers.
